

Thea Render Pricing Policy

Thea Render will be available through online store and local resellers (wherever available). It will be possible to purchase it separately from the plugins, since it is a standalone product. It is recommended though to use a plugin for your modeling application for more import options.

The release date of Thea Render will be announced shortly but the public open beta version is scheduled for mid December 2009. In the open beta version, we will be able to iron out the application and the end users can take a taste of the application and purchase it at promotional price. Regarding prices, the price list of the application and plugin licenses is given below.
